S
[PROPOSED] EMERGENCY EX
PARTE TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER AND
ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE RE:
PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

[FILED UNDER SEAL]

Plaintiffs Atlantic Recording Corporation, Atlantic Music Group LLC, Bad Boy Records LLC, Elektra Entertainment Group Inc., Elektra Entertainment LLC, Fueled by Ramen LLC, Warner Music International Services Limited, Warner Records Inc., Warner Records LLC, Sony Music Entertainment, Arista Music, Arista Records, LLC, Zomba Recording LLC, UMG Recordings, Inc., and Capitol Records, LLC (collectively, the “Record Company Plaintiffs”) have filed a Complaint against Defendants Anna’s Archive (“Anna’s Archive”) and Does 1-10 alleging violations of the Copyright Act, 17 U.S.C. § 101 et seq., and seeking injunctive and other relief thereunder.

The Record Company Plaintiffs have moved for an Emergency Ex Parte Temporary Restraining Order and an Order to Show Cause re: Preliminary Injunction pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 65(b), the All Writs Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1651, and this Court's inherent equitable powers.

Having reviewed the Complaint, the moving papers, memorandum of law, declarations, and exhibits, the Court hereby makes the following findings of fact and conclusions of law: Ex Parte

1. The Record Company Plaintiffs have demonstrated that they are entitled to the relief sought by establishing that they are likely to succeed on the merits of their claim, that they are suffering and will continue to suffer irreparable harm in the absence of injunctive relief, that the balance of hardships favors them, and that the public interest favors the entry of a temporary restraining order. See Citigroup Glob. Markets, Inc. v. VCG Special Opportunities Master Fund Ltd., 598 F.3d 30, 34 (2d Cir. 2010).

a. With respect to the likelihood of success on the merits of the Record Company Plaintiffs' claim for direct copyright infringement under the Copyright Act, 17 U.S.C. § 101 et seq., to prevail on a claim of copyright infringement, a plaintiff must show (1) the plaintiff's "ownership of a valid copyright," and (2) "infringement of the copyright by" the defendant. Yurman Design, Inc. v. PAJ, Inc., 262 F.3d 101, 109 (2d Cir. 2001). As to the first element, the Record Company Plaintiffs have demonstrated that they are likely to succeed in showing that they own or exclusively control registered copyrights in the copyrighted sound recordings identified in Exhibit A to the Complaint (the "Copyrighted Sound Recordings"), and that those copyrights are valid and entitled to protection. As to the second element, the Record Company Plaintiffs have also demonstrated that they are likely to succeed in showing that Anna's Archive infringed the copyrights in the Copyrighted Sound Recordings by "scraping" (i.e., unlawfully reproducing) those works from the popular streaming service Spotify, and that Anna’s Archive is threatening to engage in additional acts of infringement by further reproducing and distributing copyrighted works owned or controlled by the Record Company Plaintiffs, including without limitation the Copyrighted Sound Recordings, including by posting “torrent” files on the websites at the domain names annas-archive.org, annas-archive.li, and annas-archive.se (collectively, the “Anna’s Archive Websites”) that would enable users to download the sound recordings that it illegally scraped from Spotify.

Ex Parte. These findings and conclusions are, of course, based entirely on Plaintiffs' ex parte submissions and are subject to de novo review as and when the defendants respond.

b. With respect to irreparable harm, there is good cause to believe that, unless Anna’s Archive is restrained and enjoined by Order of this Court, immediate and irreparable harm will result from Anna’s Archive’s ongoing violations. Anna’s Archive’s continued infringement of copyrighted works owned by the Record Company Plaintiffs, including without limitation the Copyrighted Sound Recordings, including its stated intent to imminently mass release and distribute those sound recordings to the public, would substantially diminish the value of the Record Company Plaintiffs’ copyrighted works and interfere with the Record Company Plaintiffs’ rights and ability to control their sound recording catalogs, and to license, sell, and distribute their sound recordings. There is also good cause to believe that the Record Company Plaintiffs’ losses from Anna’s Archive’s ongoing violations would be difficult to measure, that Anna’s Archive is likely to evade enforcement of any judgment for its infringement, and that Anna’s Archive lacks sufficient assets in the United States to satisfy a judgment. WPIX, Inc. v. ivi, Inc., 691 F.3d 275, 285 (2d Cir. 2012).

c. With respect to the balance of hardships, the Record Company Plaintiffs’ immediate and irreparable harm from denial of their requested Emergency Ex Parte Temporary Restraining Order would outweigh any harm to Anna’s Archive’s legitimate interests from granting such an order. Anna's Archive's inability to reproduce and distribute copyrighted sound recordings owned or controlled by the Record Company Plaintiffs without authorization (i.e., to infringe) is not a legally recognized harm. Id. at 287.

d. The public interest also favors issuance of a temporary restraining order because the public has a compelling interest in protecting copyright owners' rights. Id. at 287.

2. Anna's Archive has attempted to conceal the true identities and locations of those associated with operating the Anna's Archive Websites, including by masking identifying information about the Anna's Archive Websites' registrants and their physical locations.

3. If the Record Company Plaintiffs were to proceed on notice to Anna's Archive, Anna's Archive would likely destroy, move, hide, or otherwise make the Anna's Archive Websites and business records relating thereto inaccessible to the Court, thus frustrating the ultimate relief the Record Company Plaintiffs seek in this action.

4. The Record Company Plaintiffs have represented that they have not publicized the filing of this action or the relief requested.

5. Entry of an order other than an ex parte order temporarily restraining Anna's Archive and requiring that all domain name registries, registrars, and hosting and internet service providers disable access to the Anna's Archive Websites, would not adequately achieve the purposes of the Copyright Act to preserve the Record Company Plaintiffs' equitable remedies for copyright infringement, nor would it adequately protect the Record Company Plaintiffs from the ongoing, mass-scale infringement of their copyrights through the Anna's Archive Websites.

6. Good cause also exists to grant leave to serve Anna's Archive by email. The Record Company Plaintiffs have established that traditional service methods would be futile. and that the Hague Convention is inapplicable. Given that Anna's Archive operates anonymously and its only contact information consists of email addresses, email service is most likely to give Anna's Archive notice of the filings pertaining to this action.
